Electric rates going up again

Wilmington electricity users will probably see a more than four percent increase in their bills this spring, but the Reading Chronicle reports the hike will likely be offset by a decrease in the fuel adjustment surcharge.

The Chronicle was reporting the events of the Monday night meeting of the Reading Municipal Light Commissioners.

The commissioners estimated the increase at between 4.1 and 4.8 percent. This will be necessary, it was reported, because of an increase in the wholesale power rate by Boston Edison, the supply source of the Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD). It will be the first increase in Reading Light's rates since January 1, 1983

At the same time, the fuel adjustment surcharge is expected to drop. Boston Edison's Pilgrim I nuclear power station is back on line after a shutdown of a year for maintenance.

According to RMLD General Manager, Norbert Rhinerson, having Pilgrim I back on line will mean a one cent decrease in the surcharge. The current price for fuel is 3.5 cents per kilowatt, down from 4.5 cents a year ago, when the system operated without Pilgrim I.

In their discussions, the commissioners said that the exact increase hinges on negdotiations with Boston on the new cost of wholesale power. Talks with Boston Edison and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission by the RMLD are on-going. The commissioners expect a new rate by April.

The Chronicle also reported that the rate hike will also help bolster the RMDS's return on investment, which state law allows to be eight percent annually. Last fall the RMLD suspended its voluntary payments to Wilmington and other towns because its returns sank to 5.4 percent for 1984, the commissioners said.

The return, in part, finances new construction which the RMLD said is necessary to keep up with growth, particularly in the "outlying" towns.

'Drugbuster' campaign in elementary schools

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington has been named one of 12 communities to promote a pilot "drugbuster" program for the elementary school age level.

The program is a joint effort of the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs, the Office of Public Safety (Drug Rehabilitation Division), the Department of Education, and the Massachusetts Elementary Principals Association.

On Tuesday, March 26, all elementary students and parents in Wilmington will be invited to a special WBZ-TV sponsored program at the high school. The presentation will feature the Performer's Ensemble, a group of professional actors who will put on a series of skits and encourage audience participation, and the appearance of a WBZ-TV news personality.

The motivating factor behind the performance is to establish better communication between parents and child, as communication is thought to be "the whole key" to drug prevention.

At the end of the performance, parent fact sheets and Drugbuster Deals (based along the lines of SADD's Contract For Life) will be distributed for signiatures and returned for a special drugbuster sticker.

The program, though geared to grades four through six, should be valuable to all elementary school parents, said School Superintendent Dr. Carol Sager at a recent briefing in her office.

"Stastics indicate so many are trying drugs at age 12 or younger," Sager said, that it's important to reach children at the elementary level "if we're interested in prevention rather than intervention."

And, she added, since Wilmington has been in the forefront of this important issue and she is presently chairman of the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs, this might have had something to do with being one of the communities chosen.

"I think parents have been looking for something along these lines for a long time," said Woburn Street School Principal Dolores Silva, who was present at the meeting. Parents are interested in what they can do before they're faced with a problem," she added.

Dr. Charles Twoomey, principal of the Shawsheen School, also seemed pleased by the recognition.

"Mr. Barrett and I feel it will be very well received at Shawsheen," said Twoomey.

Many parents have already expressed concerns on drug problems in the early grades and, added Twoomey "it's a privilege we were chosen."

According to Barbar Kopans, spokesman for the Office of Public Safety, high school students across the state have "clearly indicated" to Gov. Dukakis that in order to prevent drug problems, you must reach children in the elementary schools. There is also a need to involve parents, she said, as they still exert a great influence over their children and do a lot to prevent peer pressure.

Starting next week, 100 Massachusetts communities will receive the drugbuster materials for parents and children. And on March 20, a kickoff program will be held in Jamaica Plain, attended by Gov. Dukakis and TV celebrity Liz Walker.

Selectmen wait in vain for developer

by Arlene Surprenant

The snowstorm apparently caused the cancellation of a Monday evening meeting at the Wilmington Town Hall. After waiting for more than an hour to meet with representatives of Baizon Building Corp., Monday night, selectmen finally gave up and went home.

Baizon Building Corp. of Salem, owners of the controversial lot by Silver Lake that selectmen hope to take by purchase or eminent domain, previously submitted a negotiable price for the property to selectmen. Selectmen met in executive session Monday to discuss the price they would be willing to pay and how they would conduct negotiations. Money for the property would come from borrowing or appropriation.

According to Chairman Jim Stewart, selectmen hope to negotiate a satisfactory figure with Baizon Corp. to avoid the use of an arbitrator in case town meeting voters move to take the proerty by eminent domain. This, said Stewart, would not be "to anyone's advantage."

Those present agreed that Baizon Corp. would obtain its money quicker if they reach an agreement before March 18, rather than go through a lengthy court process.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said he would negotiate with Baizon Corp. this week and report back to selectmen next Monday night before a final agreement is made.

Nominations open for 'Good Guy' Award

Who will be Wilmington's "Good Guy" of 1985?

Nominations are now open for this annual award, given to a person who unselfishly supports the people and programs of the community — someone who makes Wilmington a better place to live.

The award is given by a committee of former recipients, chaired by the past year's recipient, this year Ken Spinelli. The award orginated in 1968, and has become a Wilmington tradition.

Nominations for the award should be submitted in writing, stating the reasons why the individual should receive the award. The nominations should be sent to "Good Guy" Committee, P.O. Box 387, Wilmington. Deadline for nominations is April 5. The award will be presented at the annual "Good Guy" dinner on Fri., May 17 at the Sons of Italy Hall.

SAT review course

The SAT college review course in English is a series of training sessions (classes) designed to help ease the student through the various tests of the verbal section and to train the student in useful methods to confront the varied material. Because of the intensity of the sessions, it is assumed that the student will train himself to develop some degree of independence in manipulating the material.

Strategies for learning will be devoted specifically to the following:

SAT sample tests; timed essay writing; guess factor; reading comprehension; vocabulary development; grammar - usage; analogies' time management; key word strategies.

To be offered at Wilmington High School: Six (6) Monday evenings, 6 to 9, March 18, 25, April 1, 8, 22,29; four (4) Saturday mornings, 9 to noon, April 1, 8, 22, 29.

Treasurer's list of unclaimed money

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane has released the names of 36,000 persons who are due more than $13 million from abandoned accounts.

Under the state's Unclaimed Money Law, bank accounts, insurance proceeds, uncashed gift certificates, payroll checks, customer overpayments and the like that have gone untouched for at least five years are deemed to be abandoned. All such accounts are to be reported to the Treasurer, who then attempts to notify the rightful owners or their heirs. Last year Treasurer Crane returned more than half ($9 million) of the $18 million in reported abandoned accounts.

Treasurer Crane said compliance with the law is improving. Nevertheless, the treasurer said he is not totally satisfied. "It is apparent that less than a sincere effort is being made by some institutions to find the owners. How can anyone fail to locate American Express, Hertz Rental, The New York Times, Boston English High School" the treasurer asked.

Treasurer Crane noted one important aspect of the Unclaimed Money Law which requires that until claimed, all funds are kept in the state's General Fund where they are invested for the benefit of all residents and taxpayers here in Massachusetts.

Fincom hits purchase of land at Silver Lake

by Arlene Surprenant

While abutters and audience members had much to say about six other articles on the special town meeting warrant, the Finance Committee seemed most vocal on two articles concerned with re-zoning and landtaking near Silver Lake at its public hearing Tuesday night.

Article Seven, to rezone a parcel of land on Main Street near Silver Lake to Residence 60, and Article Eight, to take the same parcel by purchase or eminent domain, brought up some questions and direct criticism of the way the whole issue has been handled.

Fincom Member Tom Casey said he felt uncomfortable with the whole idea. He pointed out that having these two articles on the warrant puts voters in "a very unneccessary box." The selectmen, he said, seem to be "using a town process for the wrong reasons."

By rights, Casey said, the land should have been taken by the town 20 years ago or, barring that, at least the process should be done "very quietly."

Fincom Chairman Dennis Volpe said he had mixed emotions. On the one hand, he said, he is against the proposed office building going up on that lot. On the other hand, Volpe said, with the owner already spending a lot of money on plans, it seemed "kind of underhanded" to go about taking his land in this manner.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said he agreed "the town should have been there negotiating against him" when the owner originally purchased the land. However, he said, if it weren't for access to the sewer line, the property probably wouldn't be considered buildable at all.

Questions were raised about Residence 60 zoning. Stapczynski replied he would like to have the property under the jurisdiction of the Conservation Commission.

Volpe brought up the question of the purchase price, which is still subject to negotiation. He asked if the town would be liable to reimburse the owner for expenses and, if so, would the purchase price have to be higher than market value. Stapczynski said probably, yes.

Two other warrant articles, hotly debated at a planning board public hearing last week, were again scrutinized Tuesday night.

Article Three, to rezone property off Broad Street to Planned Residential Development (PRD) for condominiums, was approved by the planning board last week as the best use of the land. Article Six, to rezone 20 acres off Route 62 to Industrial Park (IP) for an inn type motel, was not.

In an unexpected move, Attorney Bill Gustus said Paul Butt, owner of the Route 62 property, was prepared to make a motion at town meeting to amend Article Six to read ten acres instead of the original 20. This would be done to allwy abutters fears that something else might be constructed on that property, he said. It would also create more of a buffer zone between nearby homes and the motel, Gustus said.

Gustus said Butt is also leaning toward hooking up with the sewer line on Salem Street at his own expense rather than building an on-site treatment plant. This was a concern expressed by neighbors at the planning board meeting last week.

Abutters Tuesday night were adamant that the property was still in a residential area and should be used for homes. One abutter pointed out that building a motel in that part of town could have a "domino effect" on two other available parcels in that neighborhood and could "ravage" this part of town, even though he said the inn-like motel was "a very nice concept."

Other concerns such as heavy traffic flow were once again addressed.

At least six abutters and several outspoken residents aired their views on Joseph Langone's townhouse style condominiums proposed for the site in Article Three.

Again, traffic was a major issue. Mary Husen of Glen Road pointed out that it takes her ten minutes to get out of her driveway now. Imagine what it would be like, she said, with another access road creating a shortcut from Glen Road to Tewksbury.

At least five other residents agreed, saying the constant traffic and the number of accidents at the corner of Glen Road and King Street is a danger to neighborhood children as well as to adults.

In defense, Bill MacLeod, spokesman for Langone, said that in a townhouse development traffic patterns and peak hours are different. He predicted "a very slight increase" in traffic if townhouses are buillt in that area.

Casey insisted that the traffic problems are an existing problem present throughout town and Langone shouldn't be faulted for them.

Jim Buckley of Pinewood Road asked if the 45 single family homes Langone could put on that lot in place of townhouses would be "held over the abutters' heads."

MacLeod said the land is definitely "going to be developed to maximum use," either way.

As it stands with the townhouse proposal, there would be less of an impact on the school system as most families with children would not choose to live in a condominium, MacLeod said, and there would be a $100 thousand tax advantage to Wilmington.

Fincom members expressed concern over Article One, to transfer money from Free Cash to the Blue Cross - Blue Shield (BC-BS) account because of high town employee claims. Was the implication that the town has no control over future medical insurance increases they asked. It was suggested that perhaps Wilmington would be better off looking at other options, such as an Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) or a Master Health Plan.

Casey called the 85 percent increase in BC-BS insurance this year "a staggering increase with no projectability." It was apparently out of Wilmington's control, he said.

Stapczynski explained that town employees are in a self-insured program which covers up to $50,000, with BC-BS as administrators. This program, he added, served the town well until "catastrophic claims" started coming in. Now, he agreed, it may be time to look elsewhere.

State Representative James Miceli, in presenting Article Two, explained that though he has no intention of asking for a moratorium on building in Wilmington, he does hope to put land aside for town use "to achieve a balance" and create "a kind of showplace in the community."

Article Two calls for selectmen to transfer to the Conservation Commission 54 acres of land originally purchased and designated Town Forest in 1975. This would be a "first step," said Miceli, in obtaining state funds to beautify and conserve town-owned land. The article also allows for some access by the Water Department, for the building of an infiltration plant.

A planning board recommendation is still pending on Article Four, to classify any new auto dealerships as High Density Business (HDB), Planning Board Chairman Tony Gentile said.

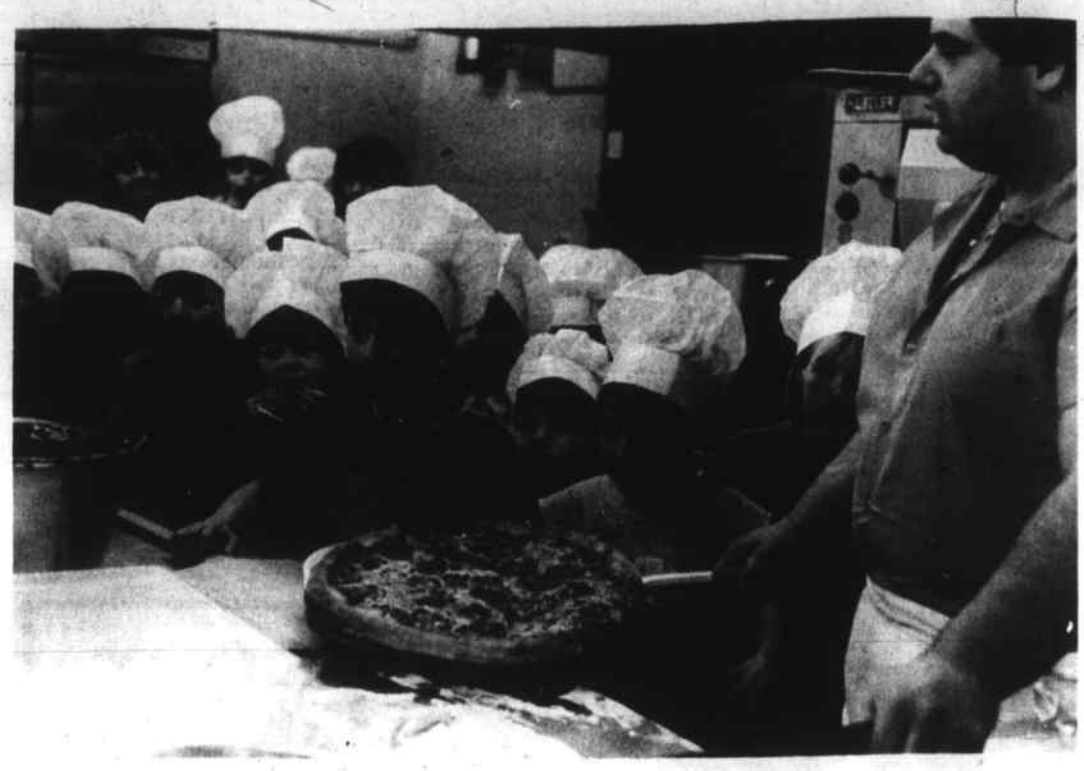

Though the planning board sponsored the article, its members were caught off guard last week when potential dealership owner Roger Groux was "caught in a bind" as he was preparing to open his new auto business on Concord Street, Gentile said. A definite decision would be reached later that night, he said.

In the meantime, he said, because a considerable number of auto dealers have sprung up in the past few years, the planning board felt it best to give the town the opportunity to vote on further changes.

In Article Five, Nick DelNinno spoke for his mother, Mary, to request that selectmen sell her a piece of property formerly owned by her family. This property would become part of her present lot and is not considered buildable at the present time.

Gentile stated that his board recommended disapproval because it felt some study should be done on all town-owned land before any more is sold.

This piece of property, said Stapczynski, is considered to be valued at $50,000 fair market value (which changes monthly) because it's lakefront property. He said the selectmen would discuss this request at their next scheduled meeting.

Too many cooks

If you're going to be an Italian chef, you have to look the part. Youngsters in the Camp Fire group "Shooting Stars" learned about making pizza in a Friday visit to Michael's Place in Wilmington. Owner Mike McCoy (right) provided the lesson — and the pizza for the youngsters to eat.

Camp Fire Birthday Month

In honor of Camp Fire's 75th Anniversary, the Wilmington Board of Selectmen has declared March "Camp Fire Birthday Month."

Girls and boys in local Camp Fire clubs are joining youth from across the country in the celebration of three-quarters of a century of dedication to the changing needs of children.

On Saturday, March 23, Wilmington's Camp Fire families will be gathering on the Town Common for a gala birthday party. Songs, balloons, refreshments and friendship promise to make the event a memorable one. Camp Fire children in towns all over the United States will be releasing thousands of balloons simultaneously on Saturday afternoon. The balloons will carry the Camp Fire message of friendship and adventure to children everywhere.

Camp Fire's 75th Birthday Celebration has been a year-long affair. It was kicked off in August at Downtown Crossing in Boston. All children are welcomed as "Camp Fire's Kids Day" offered songs, games, bands, magicians, clowns, face painting, craft workshops and computer challenges.

Wilmington children also joined in the adventure of "Camp-Ins" at the Museum of Science." The kids participated in special exploration workshops as they became scientists in action. And sleeping overnight at the Museum of Science was a real trat. A weekend with dinosaurs, magic, stethoscopes, snakes, lightning, and a trip to the stars.

And there is more to come. Helping children experience the joy and wonder of childhood is at the core of all Camp Fire programs. In recent years, Camp Fire has also included programs that meet changing needs with a special dedication to the future. Camp Fire helps children gain personal safety skills that prevent abduction and sexual abuse through prog rams such as "Caution Without Fear" and "Children's Awareness Training." Peer pressure and constructive relationship skills are the focus of "Peer Proofing." Recognition of our community's rich family heritages are ex plored in "Many Culture's Make Up Our World." All these programs help children gain skills that enrich the quality of life.

All these outstanding programs would pass unnoticed if it were not for the very backbone of the Camp Fire Experience . . . the volunteer leader, the caring adult who has decided to make a personal invstment in the lives of our children are a valued foundation of all Camp Fire is and aspires to be. The 75th Birthday of Camp Fire is also a tribute to the dedication of volunteer leaders who give the most valuable of gifts, their time.

Registration for Camp Fire's fall club programs will be held in April. For further information contact Renzin Rongone at 658-5584 or Linda Nepveu at 657-6455.

Students perform in touring company

The Wilmington High School Performing Arts Department Jazz - Rock Ensemble, Vocal Company and Dance Company performed throughout the school system February 12 and 13, culminating in a performance for high school students February 14.

The purposes of this tour were to feature the outstanding student talent as visiting artists; to give elementary and intermediate students an introduction to the scope and variety of the high school program, and to entertain and educate audiences with a wide selection of instrumental and vocal music and dance.

Student audiences responded enthusiastically to offerings which included jazz dancing to "The Main Event," "Cats," "The Wiz," and "On Broadway," and vocals including "The Rose," "What Would I do Without My Music," "Puttin' On the Ritz" and "Evita," and band selections of "The Pink Panther," "She Blinded Me With Science" and "Maleguena." All three performing groups combined with a finale, "You Should Hear How She Talks About You."

Mrs. Margaret Leonard, director of the Performing and Fine Arts, congratulated the students and their instructors, Mrs. Sandra Niemi, vocal company instructor; Miss Barbara Mette, band director; and Miss Joanne Canzaniello, dance instructor.

"Wilmington is fortunate to have teachers and students who are willing to put forth the talent and energy such a high quality program demands. The poise and spirit of the performers makes them a pleasure to work with and excellent role models for our younger students. I'm sure our tour showed students the excitement of a live performance and increased their interest in our instrumental and choral programs," Mrs. Leonard said.

Other faculty involved were Miss Lorraine Kalil who accompanied the chorus, and Miss Laurie Schmidt who designed a beautiful spring backdrop. Photography student Karen Betz put together a beautiful slide show to accompany the singing of "The Rose."

WHS students to present 'Arsenic and Old Lace'

The classic comedy, "Arsenic and Old Lace" will be presented by WHS theatre students Friday and Saturday, March 15 and 16 at 8 p.m. in the Barrows Auditorium. Students are rehearsing afternoons, evenings and Saturdays to bring to life all the zany characters, including two sweet old ladies who bury bodies in their cellar, a nephew who believes he is Teddy Roosevelt, a sinister brother and his criminal accomplice, and a very confused young man who is caught in the middle of all this hilarious confusion.

Mr. Jim Wrynn, theatre instructor, has put out a request for much needed props and set pieces. Anyone in the community who could lend or donate the following can call 658-4734 and ask for Mr. Wrynn or Mrs. Leonard, performing and fine arts director. Pickup can be arranged.

Needed: old black dial phone, hat tree, sideboard, set of mixed knives, forks, spoons, round oak-type pedestal table, toy soldiers, toy battleship, elderly lady calf length Victorian dresses, black gloves, hats, veils, decanter, men's suits, men's and women's shoes, frock coat or morning coat, khaki shorts and shirt. Any Victorian type props would be most welcome. Mr. Wrynn emphasized that these things do not need to be in perfect condition. Also, anything people would like to contribute to build up the costume and prop department for future productions would be appreciated.

The Wilmington community is invited to attend the performances and experience an enjoyable evening of theatre. Tickets are $2.50 (adults), and $1.50 (students under 12). They will be available at the door.

Caught in the act

Building the set for "Arsenic and Old Lace" is definitely an inside job for Paul Branzetti, working on a frame for the set. Wilmington High School students will stage the comedy on March 15 and 16.

Wilmington senior topics

Homemakers available

Any senior confined to home due to disability or frailty may be able to secure a homemaking assistant through an area agency.

Those who live alone on an income of less than $7,347, or a couple with combined income of less than $10,315 may receive help in the basic program free of charge. If income is above these figures they may also receive help through the sliding fee program even though they are not financially eligible for these services under the basic program. Eligibility for these services will be determined by using the income and need criteria established in the regulations of the Department of Elder Affairs.

Under the sliding fee program, for a household of one with an annual income between $7,348 and $8,760 services will cost from $8.00 to $16.00 per month. For a couple with a combined annual income between $10,316 and $11,445, the monthly cost would be from $14.00 to $23.00. Bank accounts and other assets will be included in income affecting the above figures as to qualification in either program. Those in doubt should call the Senior Center (657-7595) and a case manager will visit. Any senior receiving S.S.I. will qualify.

St. Patrick's registration closed

Registration for the St. Patrick's Therapeutic Social has been closed. The social is scheduled for next Wednesday evening at the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks Hall. Any person wishing to attend and not signed up will be placed on a waiting list.

Arts and crafts

The arts and crafts program showed a good improvement in participation last week, but many more of seniors are very creative and are urged to get involved in this program.

All programs are designed to get seniors involved and out of their homes, making new friends and helping other seniors.

Many calls for minibus

A large number of calls are being received for transportation on the minibus. The number of doctor and hospital runs takes a good deal of time, especailly when transporting a senior on the wheelchair lift to doctors and hospitals in and out of town. The chair has to be strapped securely and unstrapped when the van gets to the doctor or hospital. Seniors who are calling for the van for sh opping or to visit the Center must realize the driver's first priority is the doctor and hospital appointments. Hairdressers, dentists or seniors visiting a patient in the hospital ar enot considered a priority. Those in charge are doing the best they can to satisfy everybody, but to do this, consideration - from all concerned is necessary. Those who have a car accessible should not be calling for the minibus.

Nellie Pachell

When listing those who helped with the Valentine's Day shut-in dinners, the name of Nellie Pachell was inadvertantly omitted.

Theater company visits school

The Loon and Heron Theatre Company, a well-known Boston based group committed to quality children's theatre, performed recently at the Woburn Street School. The program was arranged and funded by Mrs. Margaret Leonard, director of performing and fine arts as part of a continuing effort to enrich the arts curriculum throughout the Wilmington school system. Students from the Shawsheen and Wildwood Schools, as well as Woburn Street students, saw the performance entitled "In a Deep Dark Wood," an enchanting story theatre piece involving magic, music and familiar folktales. Five actors, a musician, sets and costumes delighted the audiences, who often could not resist giving suggestions and warnings to the characters. High school acting students also obslerved the performance so they could analyse professional actors at work.

Mrs. Leonard commented, "It is always exciting to watch children experience the magic of live theatre, some for the first time. This is an art form that children are often exposed to only through a field trip experience. It is wonderful we can offer it to them in their own schools."

Fire Dept. accident

A Wilmington Fire Department pickup truck responding to a fire Thursday evening was heavily damaged in an accident on Church Street, about 150 yards from the fire station, when it collided with a vehicle driven by Raymond Bicknell of Stoneham, and then hit a car driven by Robert Bailey of Lowell. Bicknell was arrested and charged with multiple offenses, including driving under the influence of alcohol. Bailey was treated at the scene for minor injuries. The driver of the pickup, Deputy Fire Chief Walter Sowyrda, was not injured. (djf photo)

Anti-cancer group opens library in Wilmington

The Boston Chapters of Cancer Control Society and National Health Federation will combine their resources in opening a unique degenerative disease educational facility at 10 a.m. Thurs., March 7 at 299 Main St., Rte. 38, in Wilmington.

Dedication ceremonies will start at 7:30 p.m. as many state and local dignataries express their bst wishes to the sponsoring organizations.

Wholistic health advocates from around New England will be in attendance for the celebration. Among those attending is world famous author and Living Food Scientist Ann Wigmore, N.D., of Boston. Ann is a living example of the rejuvenation capabilities of the human body, as she suffered from serious chronic health problems 30 eyars ago and presently enjoys robust health and a full schedule at age 76. Ann's birthday, March 4, 1907, will be honored during the evening. One of Ann's famous statements is: "Disease is absolutely unnatural."

Among the library's many offerings are hundreds of books on the natural approach to health and wellness through prevention. Many were written by persons who have recovered from serious illness which were considered incurable. Books and research papers written by scientists and doctors are also in abundance. Cassettes, videos of testimonials, healed patient lists and nutrition minded health facility locations are also available.

Many hard to find governments reports are on file which link diet, stress and environmental hazards as direct causes of certain degenerative diseases.

Citizens are invited to investigate material which predicts public education as the best means of wiping out cancer with existing information currently supressed by medical science.

President of NHF - CCS Boston Chapters Warren Newhouse states, "It's about time we air all the facts surrounding degenerative disease prevention and control. We openly urge the professional and lay community to examine our information and draw their own conclusions. We receive calls for help from across America on a daily basis. Many calls are from practicing professionals who find their current methods are not working and are looking for options. Education is only the half of it, the hardest part by far is the changing of lifelong habits which set us up for these unhealthy conditions."

Tewksbury to have 'Safe Houses' for children

by Elaine DePasquale

Forty "Safe Houses" are soon to be earmarked emergency havens for Tewksbury schoolchildren.

The homes, and their owners, are taking part in a new program, "Safe Houses", sponsored by The Society For Young Victims, a nation-wide organization dedicated to prevention of childnapping and to the location of children already missing.

Linda Adley, coordinator of the newly-formed Tewksbury chapter, says she expects the number of Safe Houses to grow to an estimated 400.

"I can't believe the response," said Adley. "My phone keeps ringing off the hook."

According to Adley, the concept of Safe Houses has been working successfully in other area towns for two years. It involves volunteers who offer their homes to young children as a refuge to be used in the event of an emergency, whether it be harrassment from a stranger or, as she described, a youngster frightened by a pair of big dogs.

Each potential Safe House, she said, has its occupants screened by the local police department and, if accepted, is issued an eye-catching decal which can be easily identified on a front window by a youngster in trouble.

"There are many safety precautions," said Adley, who explained that each person 16 or older in a potential Safe House must submit identification and be cleared by the police department. Applications are rejected if anyone in the household has been convicted of a felony, she said.

In addition, she said, she personally screens the applicants herself and she and her neighborhood captains survey the neighborhoods to be certain decals displayed agree with a list she keeps and which is updated every two or three months.

Community participation has been gratiying, Adley said. The program has received the approval of the Tewksbury School Department, which allows the Society For Young Victims to make an hour-long safety presentation in each school and to send home to parents Safe House applications.

The safety program, Adley said, uses posters and other visual aids to instruct elementary school children how to safely respond to potentially dangerous situations such as being asked directions by strangers. It has been taped by Warner Cable TV, she said, and is being used as a model for other safety programs.

Father Joseph Blaney, pastor of St. Williams' Church, has also offered to help, she said, by printing an announcement in the church bulletin and by offering the use of the church hall for meetings. Many individuals in the community have also offered their time and energy, Adley said.

Adley, herself the mother of four young children, said she became involved in the Society For Young Victims because of a friend in Billerica whose son was molested two years ago. The program, she said, has raised the awareness of all her family so that recently her own parents were instrumental in helping to return a runaway boy to his home.

Last month Adley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burlamachi of Billerica, were driving along a dimly lit area of Rte. 3A when they spotted a youngster limping and apparently troubled. They stopped to see if he needed any help, she said, and were amazed to discover he had run away from home five hours earlier and had been reported missing from Tewksbury. The youngster had been walking since early afternoon and was extremely cold, tired and hungry, Adley said. The Burlamachis took the child to a phone and helped him to call his parents. Within minutes the Billerica police were on the scene and the family was reunited, she said.

The Burlamachis had recently attended their first meeting of the Society For Young Victims. They told Adley that at another time they might have driven by without giving the child another thought, but the program they had recently attended had made them more aware of potentially dangerous situations for children.

"The thing that impressed my mother was how easy it was to pick him up," said Adley, something that the safety program of the Society For Young Victims is hoping to change by educating children.

The Safe House Program is totally a volunteer program, Adley said, funded by contributions and by fund raising programs. Its potential impact on manpower needs of the police department has yet to be assessed.

According to Tewksbury Police Lieutenant Walter Jamieson, requests for security checks would have to be done by the criminal bureau "as time permits" and to be prioritized along with the department's other work. Processing them all at once, he said, "could take some manpower to do it" depending upon the number of applications received.

"I believe it's a very good idea," he said, however. "As long as the proper investigation is done on applicants, I'm all for it."

Police Chief John Sullivan agreed, so long as security checks were made and proper "safeguards" implemented.

"We don't want a youngster finding himself in even more trouble by going to a home that hasn't been checked out," he said.

Sullivan said he felt the checks could be handled without any budget impact for his department. He has assigned Inspector Frank Sullivan of the criminal bureau to head up the program.

At the present time, he said, Tewksbury has two missing teenagers on its records. Both were children placed in Tewksbury homes by the Department of Youth Services.

One has been missing since July, the other since January, he said.

The Society for Young Victims was founded in 1975 in Providence, R.I. by June Vlasaty. Its current president is John E. Sobolski, a Manchester, N.H. antique dealer. Director of the Safe House Program in Massachusetts is Elaine Moroconi of Billerica.

The society, which claims it is responsible for locating 168 children nationally in 1984, is also affiliated with the Missing Children Network, a Texas-based national hotline.

In the future, the society hopes to have a central computer to store information on missing children and general information on known molesters.

Their motto, Adley says, is "Remember we are all related to a child in some way."

Mite A's set for National Tourney

Wilmington's undefeated Midget A hockey team will be representing Massachusetts in a national tournament sponsored by the Philadelphia Flyers to be held at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, the weekend of March 8, 9 and 10.

The team will be facing an unrelenting three day, five game schedule, opening with the Philadelphia Mariners at 5 p.m. on Friday, followed by teams from New Jersey, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Buffalo, New York, Canada and the Greater Philadephia area.

Closer to home, the Midget A's remain undefeated after 14 games. Sunday, March 3 saw Wilmington trounce Malden, 6-2 with a display of solid and aggressive teamwork.

Steve Fuller highlighted the victory with a hattrick, while Sean Lambert dished out three assists. Other goal scorers were John McLaughlin, a recent addition to the team, scoring his fifth goal in four games. Joe Costabile and Bob Seville completed the scoring with a goal each.

Goaltender John McNally's 2.0 goals against average demonstrates why the Wilmington defense is rated number one in the division. On February 24 McNally recorded his third shutout of the season in Wilmington's 2-0 victory over Tewksbury.

Jeff Brennan led the team by scoring both goals, with assists going to Brian Walsh, Sean Lambert and Steve McKenna.

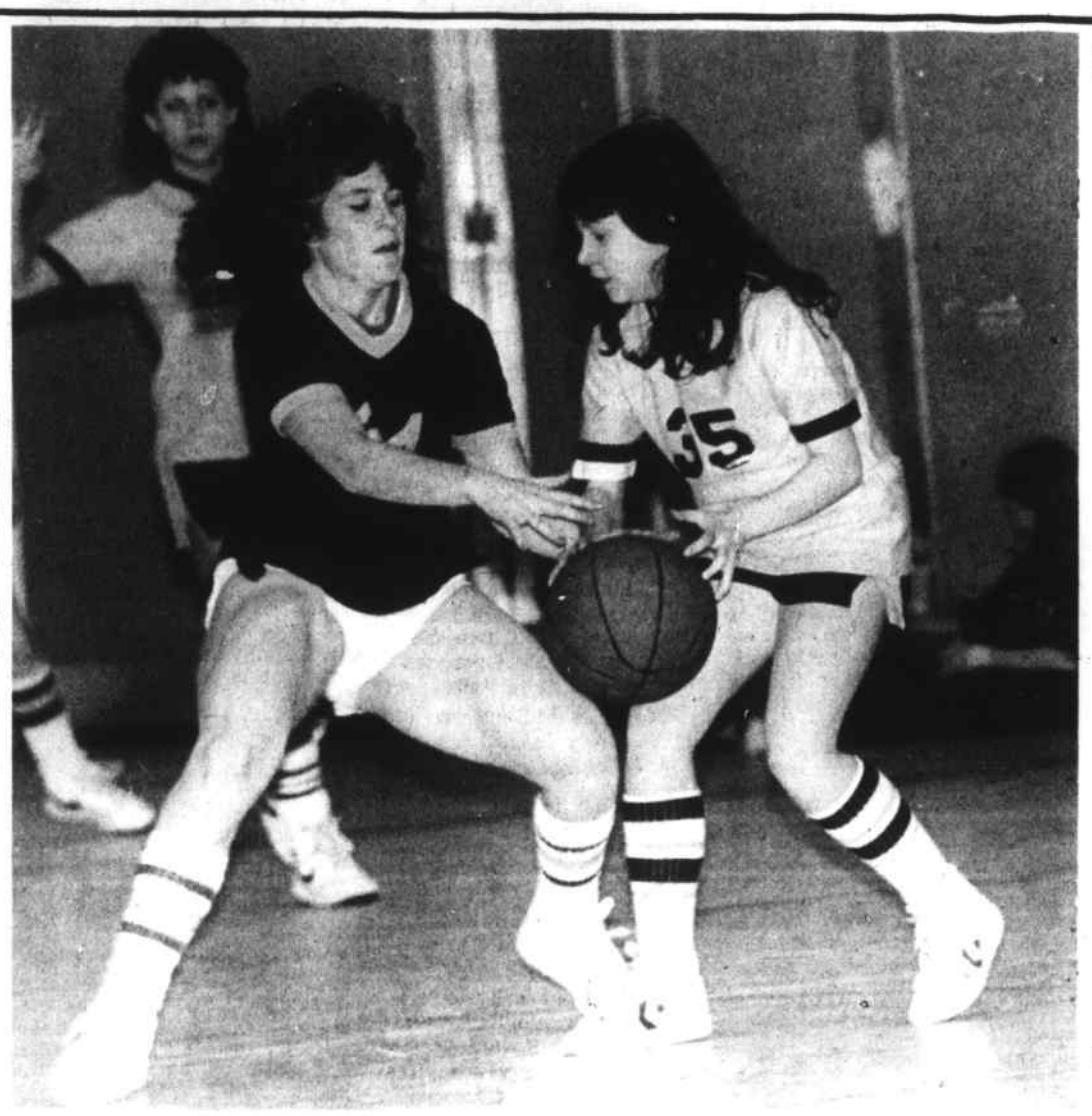

Wilmington's other wins came at the expense of Billerica, 5-3 and Acton, 5-2.

The defensive corp, consisting of Brian Walsh, Bill Gullage, Jay Joyce, Rich Kurowski and Dave Marranzini, has demonstrated that the key to winning is a solid defense.

Coach Jack Calandrello pointed out that the defense has allowed only 28 goals in 14 games, while the high powered offense has pumped in a league leading 70 goals.

The offense consists of centers Jeff Brennan, Steve Fuller and Butch Alpers along with wings Joe Costabile, John McLaughlin, Bob Seville, Sean Lambert, Steve McKenna and Dave Gardner.

The team is looking forward to maintaining its' winning ways this weekend in Philadelphia.

Redmen, Wildcats eliminated

Both the Wilmington and Tewksbury High School hockey teams were eliminated from Eastern Mass. Tournament play this past week, while the Shawsheen Tech hockey and hoop squads each posted impressive first round victories.

Xaverian 4 Wildcats 1

Sophomore goaltender Rob Terrazano came up with a superb effort in his first tournament appearance, turning back 26 Xaverian shots.

The score stood at 2-1 Xaverian with just over a minute left to play in Saturday's game at Boston University before the eventual winners broke the game open.

Chris Dindo scored Wilmington's lone goal, with help from Tom Craig and Jim Taylor. The Wildcats finished their season with a 9-10-1 record.

Dom Savio 5 Redmen 4

The Redmen saw their seven game winning streak (10 straight unbeaten) end in quarterfinal action Monday night, as Dom Savio came up with two third period goals to erase a 4-3 Tewksbury lead.

Mike McLaughlin played a super game for the Redmen with two goals and an assist. Bob Ware and Russ Mann had the other TMHS lamplighters. Darrell Favreau registered a Tewksbury assist.

Wilmington Youth Basketball

Eighth graders finish with tough loss

The Wilmington eighth grade traveling basketball team ended its' regular basketball season last week with a tough loss to Everett. Though minus their strong center, the young Wildcats all contributed offensively.

High scorer was Jeff Bowen with 13 points, followed by Sean Colclough with five, Chris Riccio four, Brian Pupa three and Mark Palismano, Michael Buonopane, Ronnie Pennie and Neil Pentinen each sinking two.

Brian Pupa, filling in at the center position, played strong under the boards and Ronnie Pennie's aggressive play led to several Everett turnovers. Coaches Jack Bowen and Bob Perry expressed their appreciation to their young eight man team for its' positive attitude, determination and team spirit throughout the season. A special thanks also to the parents for their constant support.

First half makes difference

The first half performance made the difference, as the sixth grade Wildcats were defeated, 42-31 in a game played at Everett last Saturday night.

Everett outscored Wilmington 13-7 in both the first and second periods and led at halftime, 26-14. It was rough for both sides, as only one official was on hand throughout most of the first half. Everett set up an effective defensive trap and forced a number of turnovers.

Matt Ryan countered with six quick points and assisted the team with six rebounds. Bobby Caruso was high scorer with 10 points, six rebounds and a blocked shot. Also scoring for the Wildcats was Kevin Lewis with six, Greg Maiella five, Greg Scarfo with two and Michael Hawley with two points on a 12 foot turnaround.

Wilmington outscored the opponents during the second half 18-16 and came to within five points of tieing the game with three minutes remaining in the fourth period. While the bench provided much needed relief, it was not enough to overcome the Everett team in the last two minutes of the game.

As the regular season has now ended, a number of other players who because of their position or playing time do not always show in the scoring column, have consistently demonstrated outstanding personal and team effort, regardless of the score or game circumstances. They are guards Tony Bonnarigo, Eric Heselton and Andy Jamerson, forwards Jimmy Maiella and Bobby Pallazzi and centers Robert Banonski and Joey Cunningham.

Wilmington is scheduled to play in three tournaments beginning next weekend with the Methuen Youth Tournament. The Salem State and Merrimack College tournaments will complete the 1984-85 season.

Everett edges Wilmington

Saturday, March 2, the seventh grade hoop team travelled to Everett for a 7:30 game. Wilmington took a fast lead, but with many unusual calls Everett emerged the winner in a 38-36 victory.

Mark Bobek was high scorer with 13 points, followed by Jason Oliver with 11. Jamey Robichaud and Andy Parr each hit the hoop for four points. Chris Riccio and Scott Tuxbury sunk two points each.

Mike George, K.C. Bolger and Joey McFadyen sparked the defense, while Joey Mahoney and Peter Medberry worked hard under the boards. This was the last scheduled seventh grade game of the season, as the team finished with a 13-13 record.

Final winter recaps

Winter sports coaches in Tewksbury and Wilmington are reminded that final stories and summaries will be accepted over the next several weeks. Any coach wishing to give his or her team a final plug before the start of the spring season should do so before April 1. The Town Crier sports deadline is Monday night at 6 p.m. Scores and statistics can also be called in Tuesday nights before 6 p.m.

Mite Invitational hockey tournament

A Mite Hockey Tournament is scheduled for Friday, March 15 through Sunday, March 17 to benefit two scholarship funds. Youth Hockey officials urge all to attend and support local youth talent. The tournament will be held at the Hallenborg Rink, Billerica. Admission is free. Refreshments will be sold.

In order to raise money, there will be prizes raffled that include a cabbage patch doll and a hockey figurine lamp. The chances are $1.00 each. Those who wish to buy a chance may do so at the rink or call 667-1213 after 6 p.m.

The Mite Invitatonal Hockey Tourney is held at the Hallenborg Rink every year to raise money for scholarships. Each year a scholarship is given to one male Billerica High School hockey senior in the name of Ralph Hallenborg, with a scholarship also awarded to a female Billerica High School senior athlete in the name of Joanne Parkhurst O'Brien. Each is a four year scholarship granted on the basis of a student's need.

Money is needed for these scholarships. Those who wish to take out a business card ad in the program, may do so for $10.00. A patron listing is $1.00. All contributions will be greatly appreciated. Please make checks payable to Hallenborg-O'Brien Scholarship Fund, 18 Friendship Street, Billerica, Ma. 01821. Deadline is March 10.

As these scholarships are funded only by this Mite Tournament, advertisements and contributions are the lifeblood. All non-monetary contributions will be raffled off at this tournament.

Leaping ability

There appears to be some real leapers on the TMHS girls' hoop horizon. Here a flock of recreation girls battle for a rebound.

Tewksbury Adult Basketball

Caveney paces Towne past Oakdale, 72-66

Ed Caveney's game high 22 points led Towne Auto to a semifinal playoff win over Oakdale Liquors, 72-66 last Thursday night in Tewksbury Adult Basketball League action.

Trailing for most of the game and at times down by as many as 12 points, Towne put together a run of 16 straight points to take the lead at the end of the third quarter. The two teams virtually traded baskets throughout the last period, as Towne scored 23 and Oakdale put up 21.

Oakdale was hampered with early foul trouble, as center Rod MacLellan picked up four in the first period. MacLellan was still able to lead Oakdale in scoring with 21 points, followed by John McNamara with 19. For Towne Auto, TJ Caveney added 21 and Barry Sheehan chipped in with 16.

Towne Auto Body will now be going after its' 10th league title in the last 11 seasons this Thursday night. The mainstays of the past 10 championships have been player-coach Steve Catalano, Keith Caveney, Brian Irwin, Barry Sheehan and Gene Manley.

Towne, the oldest team in the league, will now take on the youngest team in O'Brien's Roofing. O'Brien's' is led by former Tewksbury High standouts Kevin O'Brien, Ron Browder, Dave Libby, Ron Wallace, Todd DiRocco, JV coach Paul Garrity and player-coach David O'Brien.

Magazine survey shows high crime rate

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington was ranked 109 out of a possible 140 towns and cities in suburb safety in the newly released March issue of Boston Magazine, a rank that shows Wilmington with a higher than average crime rate.

The survey encompassed northeastern Massachusetts and was based on the latest available crime data (1983) garnered from the FBI, the Massachusetts Dept. of Public Safety, and local police departments.

The survey ranked nearby Billerica 59, North Reading 72, Andover 94, and Burlington 132 (due to "shopping mall syndrome"). No figures were available for Tewksbury.

If you'd like to live in a relatively crime free community, you'd be wise to move to the top towns listed in the survey: Holliston, Sherborn, and Georgetown, rated 1-2-3 respectively. Lynn has the distinciton of having the worst crime rate of the 140 surveyed.

Based on the per thousand population, Wilmington's overall crime rate was 38.72, its violent crime rate was 2.61, and property crime rate was listed as 36.11.

In the survey, Wilmington had a total larceny count of 367 (199 total burglaries, 84 motor vehicle thefts, and 41 aggravated assaults.)

According to the survey, location of a community is one of the greatest indicators of a town's crime rate. With easy accessibility to Routes 93 and 128 and a closeness to Boston, Wilmington automatically becomes an easier target for the criminally inclined.

Interestingly, spending more money on police protection doesn't seem to affect the crime rate in any but a negligible way.

The most effective ways to reduce crime in middle-class neighborhoods, says the article, is to set up "neighborhood watches" and invest in home security and burglary systems.

According to James Fox, associate professor of criminal justice at Northeastern University, adolesence and young adulthood are the "prime ages" for criminal activity. He points out that since the "post war baby boomers" have reached middle age, the crime wave has leveled off. But, he predicts, there will be another crime surge in the 1990's, when the children of the baby boomers reach their teens.

Irish music program at Wilmington library

The Wilmington Council for the Arts will sponsor a program of Irish music and art Saturday, March 23 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in the conference room at Wilmington Memorial Library. Featured will be the acoustic sounds of "The Music Makers," Eileen Moore Quinn and Shamus Pender.

"To be entertained by Shamus and Eileen is to be transported into a world as heartwarming as Ireland herself, with musical hospitality, comraderie, — a toast here, an anecdote there, and always another song for the road. One enters into each performance as one would enter a thatched Galway cottage or a cozy Dublin pub, sure to be welcomed..."

With a multitude of instruments, from concertina to penny whistle, guitars to banjos, Shamus and Eileen exchange their musical expertise and knowledge of Celtic culture in a rare combination of with and satire.

The Arts Council also plans to set up an exhibit of the work of local artists with Irish heritage. Anyone intersted in displaying art work should call 658-5231, evenings.

Admission will be free to Wilmington residents; however, advance reservations must be made as seating is very limited. Please send requests for tickets along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Wilmington Council for the Arts in care of Town Hall, Glen Road, Wilmington, MA 01887.

Kevin Sowyrda

Kevin John Sowyrda, a lifelong resident of 7 Davis Rd., Wilmington has announced his candidacy for the open seat on the Regional Vocational School Committee.

Kevin is a third year student in the Arts & Sciences Honors Program at Northeastern University, majoring in political science and public administration. An employee of the Mitre Corporation since 1983, Kevin serves as the public relations officer for the local Office of Emergency Management, and is a Notary Public.

The school is funded both by the Commonwealth and each of the five towns that make up the region. The total district budget proposed for 1985-86 is $6,852,056.

The proposed Wilmington assessment is $625,034. With this sum of monies being expended, it is essential that every citizen take an interest in the April 20 election.

Sowyrda was the first individual to take out papers for the Regional Vocational School Committee, and has received the endorsement of Bridget Zukas, chairman of the Wilmington School Committee.

John Keiley

Mr. Keiley is a graduate of Massachusetts Maritime Academy with Vietnam service from 1965 through 1969. He now works as a maintenance engineer with the Boston Edison Company.

The candidate is deeply interested in the welfare and well being of Wilmington elderly residents and desires a seat on the WHA board to help ensure that our tax dollars are being wisely and efficiently used with regard to Housing Authority projects.

Wilmington school news

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington High School

Several aspects of the high school marking system have been changed since Paul Fleming took over as principal.

This year, by vote of the school committee, any Wilmington student wishing to participate in interscholastic sports at the high school must have a minimum average of 70.

Under the Mass. Interscholastic Athletic Assoc., an athletic arm of the Mass. Principal's Assoc., the system worked differently. Students who passed three subjects (even if only with a 65 grade in each and possibly flunking the others) were eligible to participate in after school sports.

According to Fleming, this kind of system doesn't provide much motivation for excellence." He maintains that upgrading the standards to a cumulative average of 70 gives the students "something to shoot for" and is more in keeping with the newly proposed graduation requirements.

Fleming also suggested using a literal or letter grade rather than a number grade on student report cards. This would bring WHS more in line with traditional marking systems around the state and serve as an aid in the "class rank situation."

The school committee approved the change three weeks ago, a change which will be reflected on student report cards beginning next September.

A scholarship dance, sponsored by the high school PAC, is in the offing for March 29 at the Sons of Italy Hall. Held from 7:30 to 12:30 p.m., the dance will feature a disc jockey and a buffet. Tickets are on sale for $9.00 a person.

All profits will go toward funding two $500 scholarships for deserving seniors, according to spokesperson Judy Kincaid, and all high school parents as well as adult residents of the community are invited to attend. For further information, contact Judy at 658-8099 after 4 p.m.

West Intermediate

Foreign language students at the West Intermediate took part in a poster contest Monday in honor of Foreign Language Week.

According to French teacher Mrs. Shellenbach, students were asked to draw a poster in the form of an advertisement to reflect an answer to the question: Why should you study a foreign language?

Posters were hung around the school and rated by a panel of judges made up of teachers in other subject areas.

Social studies students at the West Intermediate took part in the annual National History Day contest on Thursday, Feb. 28.

Fifty-one students participated in the contest, which included a variety of project categories including group projects, media presentations, individual projects, and research papers and performances. The theme of this year's contest was Triumphs and Tragedies in History. The students researched a wide spectrum of topics and spent many hours fine-tuning their exhibits.

Projects were judged on historical quality, quality of presentation, and adherence to the theme and rules. The judges, as well as social studies teachers Mr. Meyers and Mr. Stone, were extremely impressed by the quality and effort exhibited by all participants.

The following is a list of the projects and students that qualified for the regional competition at the University of Lowell on March 16.

Photography, A History of Trimphs and Tragedies by Scott Catena;

Triumphs in the History of Flight by Scott Heller;

The Tragedy of Pearl Harbor by David MacMullin, Corey Youk, Bobby Caccamesi, and Michael Sullivan;

The Vietnam Tragedy by Jonathan Masse, Mark Palmisano, Jeff Stevenson, and Kevin Brennan;

John F. Kennedy by Michael Bento, Jeff Bowen, R.J. Pizzi, and J.R. Surprenant;

Nicaragua by Julie Callahan, Denise Cosgrove, and Lisa Rokentenetz;

Triumphs and Tragedies of the Kennedy Family by Tracy Currier, Noel Bouchie and Christine O'Brien;

The Wright Brothers by Nancy O'Leary and Heather Surprenant;

Dr. Salk and his Polio Vaccine by Melissa Peters;

Ethiopia: In the Midst of a Tragedy by Brenda Jones, Jennifer O'Donnell, Harriet Fezidis, and Gwen Hupper.

Shawsheen Elementary

The Shawsheen PAC has a full calendar of activities planned for students for the rest of the school year.

On March 12 and 15, all students will be entertained by the Brown Bag Opera Co. Partially funded by a grant from the Performing Arts Dept. at the high school, the company will give a total of four performances and will also entertain in other schools throughout the system.

On April 10, folk and bluegrass duo Orrin Starr and Gary Mehalick will be on tap with guitar and banjo while on May 9 PAC members will sponsor the Poobly Greegy Puppet Theater at the school.

Members of the Audubon Society and several live animal friends will be visiting the school in June to teach pupils about different animals and their habits.

North Intermediate

According to Photography Club advisor Robert Young, the school has obtained two Polaroid cameras and anticipates the arrival of two more momentarily, thanks to the generosity of those who donated receipts from Polaroid 600 film.

The cameras will be used at the discretion of any school personnel. Young reminds all that receipts are still being collected in the hope of obtaining several more cameras for school use.

Candidates' announcements

The candidates' announcements presented here were prepared by the candidates or persons working for the candidates, not by the Town Crier staff. In local elections, the Town Crier prints a candidate's statement of candidacy free of charge, provided that it is submitted before the filing deadline.

Mitchell Spiris is candidate for School Committee

Mitchell J. Spiris of 6 Truman Rd., has announced his candidacy for one of the two openings on the Wilmington School Committee. Mr. Spiris, a 29 year resident of Wilmington holds bachelors and masters degrees from Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois, as well as having done additional graduate study at Boston University.

In addition to his strong interest in providing the best possible education for every student in Wilmington schools, he lists as is qualifications his five years business experience with G.E. Co. in Lynn, six years of teaching and coaching in New Hampshire, and 23 years of experience as a central office administrator in the Lexington, Massachusetts Public Schools. During his tenure in Lexington he held positions as department head, school business official, director of personnel, assistant superintendent for secondary education, and in two different school years served as interim superintendent of schools.

Spiris retired in 1979 and has since done personnel consulting to schools. He feels these experiences will be valuable to the school committee in the many critical decisions to be made in the coming three years.

Spriis and his wife Cecily have one daughter, Suzanne Cushing, and one granddaughter, Kelly, a kindergarten student at the Woburn Street School. Suzanne went through the Wilmington school system as did her husband James. Mrs. Spiris is a 25 year member of the Wilmington Women's Club and a former Welcome Wagon hostess in the town.

Shirley Callan seeks School Committee seat

Shirley F. Callan, a resident of Wilmington for 25 years, has announced her candidacy for the School Committee. Shirley and her husband attorney and former Town Moderator, John M. Callan and their three sons reside at 571 Woburn St., and have been active in town activities in a variety of ways for many years.

A graduate of Katherine Gibbs School, Shirley enrolled at Merrimack College after her children matured, and graduated Summa Cum Laude, was awarded the Cardinal Cushing Medal as first ranking student in the Division of Social Sciences, and designated a Presidential Scholar in 1981. She then went on to pursue her interest in school and community relations at Harvard University graduating with a Masters Degree in Counseling and Consulting Psychology. She is currently an advanced doctoral candidate at Harvard University in the area of Teaching, Curriculum and Learning Environments. While at Harvard, she was elected to Phi Delta Kappan, a National Honor Society in Education.

Locally, Shirley has served as a member of the Wilmington Board of Library Trustees for the past 15 years, several times as Chairman. She recently resigned to run for a seat on the School Committee. Shirley is also on the Board of Directors of the Mystic Valley Office for Children and is the Representative to the State Advisory Council. In the past she has also served on the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Rehabilitlation Association and as past Chairman of the Wilmington Historical Committee.

For the past two years, Shirley has been Coordinator of Project Intercede, originally a federally - funded grant at Wilmington High School and a highly successful crisis intervention program for students which contains a tutoring and counseling component designed to help students at risk of dropping out of school. Shirley has submitted her resignation in order to run for the School Committee.

Shirley F. Callan

Shirley believes in excellence in education and that every student needs reading, math and writing skills. This basic training takes place in a school system that cares and is willing to take the time and its best training to achieve it. Community involvement in this endeavor is paramount. We must all, as parents, students, administrators and faculty, as well as School Committee pull together to make this a reality for all students in Wilmington — for children come first, she says.

Shirley's desire to serve on the School Commitee has been thought through thoroughly and is a decision which she considers wise, timely, and appropriate. The residents of Wilmington have shown their committment to excellence in education by recently voting a six million dollar renovation to the high school. Shirley's education, background and experience make her uniquely qualified to help carry out this committment made by the residents of the Town and to bring the stability necessary to accomplish these goals. Moreover, she says, meeting the needs of the children in every way possible must come first.

Locals at Millionaires Ball!

By MIKE BRENNAN

BOSTON — "The Millionaire's Ball," held at the Meridien Hotel in Boston Saturday night was the second chance of a lifetime for some, where even losers were winners and 30 people had a chance of walking home with a check for $1 million.

John T. Gonzalo of 11 Norval Ave., Stoneham, and his wife Robin were present as guests of the state lottery commission, sponsors of the affair.

Gonzalo was one of 30 people chosen by the state lottery commission as finalists in a drawing for $1,333,333, which, after taxes, rounds off to a cool million.

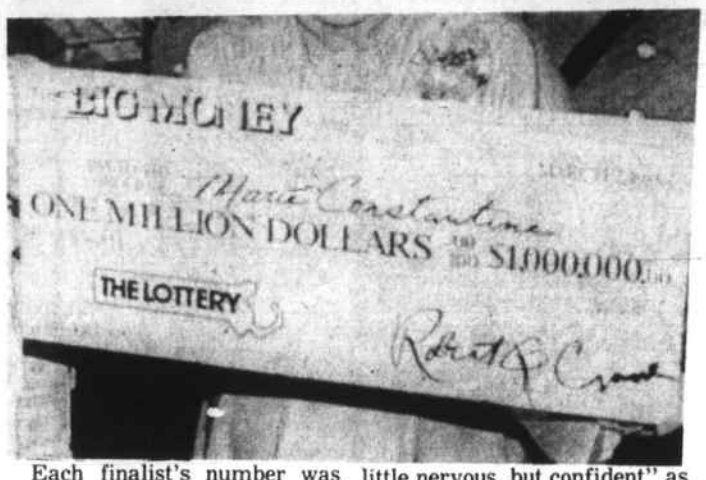

All 30 finalists, even if they didn't win the million, were winners anyway, as each of them was guaranteed a minimum of $10,000 or a 1985 Ford Thunderbird.

Before the final drawing, which was televised on WBZ Channel 4, each finalist was presented with a check for $10,000.

"I don't know of anybody who took the car," said Gonzalo, who proudly showed off his check from the state.

"I feel great as it is," he said, "but I'll feel even better when I win my million."

Gonzalo, 32, who has owned his own vending machine business for three years, said his two daughters, Katie, 2, and Rhyannon, 8, didn't really understand the concept of a "millionaire dad."

Each finalist's number was drawn from a drum in the Margaux Room of the hotel, where the affair was held amid a crush of television equipment and formally dressed guests and past lottery winners.

During the course of the one-hour telecast, five numbers were drawn from the drum as the five final candidates for the million dollar grand prize.

Gonzalo said that he felt "a little nervous, but confident" as the time came for drawing the final numbers.

Gonzalo had picked five out of six numbers correctly for the Megabucks jackpot twice before, winning $400 each time.

He had sent five losing Big Money tickets from the weekly game in to the lottery commission to be entered in the drawing for the Millionaire's Ball.

"I sent in those tickets," Gonzalo said, "and about a month ago they gave me the news ... and here I am."

When asked what he would do with the million dollars, Gonzalo said: "Everything ... build a house on the Cape and probably invest it."

Gonzalo had a "gentleman's agreement" with finalist Stephen Delaney of Lowell, number 29, that if either of them won the grand prize, they would give the other $10,000.

When number 29 was picked out of the drum at around 9:30, Gonzalo shared in Delaney's excitement saying that even if he didn't win the big prize, he was still, "happy at the chance of another $10,000."

When the five finalists were picked, and Gonzalo wasn't one of them, he said: "I'm a little disappointed, but it's no problem though, I've got $10,000 that I'm going to invest in a business We'll get it next time."

VETERINARIAN GARY WIEDWALD, of Winchester, says there is good news for cat owners, with the development of a new vaccine to innoculate cats against infection from the feline leukemia virus. The young cat Lokke, lower right, recuperating from a recent, unrelated operation, is unaware the scientific breakthrough may spell a longer, healthier life for him.

Cat leukemia

By JIM ROUILLARD

"Who is to bell the cat? It is easy to propose impossible remedies."

— Aesop

Queens, feline leukemia and catteries are phenomena familiar to most cat owners, but may strike others as an unlikely mixture of royalty, disease and places like the House of the Rising Sun.

Yet if you're like many people, you are aware of these terms because the cat's not got your tongue — but your heart. And a predominant, increasing fear among cat owners is the threat of cat leukemia, or feline leukemia virus (FeLV).

Now, according to veterinarian Gary Wiedwald of Winchester, a new vaccine has been developed which may have achieved, if not an impossible remedy, at least preventive innoculation, to spell a probable end to fear for cat fanciers.

Cat leukemia, according to Dr. Wiedwald, is actually a misnomer, and bears no connection whatsoever to leukemia in humans. Cats who have the virus, in fact, are more likely to die of diseases other than leukemia, he added.

The reason for this is that cat leukemia, though unrelated to the disease AIDS in humans, has certain parallels with AIDS. Both diseases, Wiedwald said, attack the body's immune defense system and weaken the individual's resistance to other diseases.

And though leukemia is receiving considerable attention, and has caused high alarm among pet-owners, its actual occurrence in cats is rare, according to veterinarians.

The symptoms of cat leukemia, Dr. Wiedwald said, begin with obvious sickness. Common signs are fever of undetermined origin, anemia, and apathy.

Just as there is apparently a cancer-prone personality type among humans, he added, there

Preparing the President's budget

The newspapers and television news have been filled lately with stories about the problems President Reagan has been facing with his latest budget. Well, our far-flung correspondent has his own version of what the president's top advisors must have gone through while preparing this controversial piece of monumental financial planning. Now keep in mind that the following is a totally ficticious scenario of what might have been said between two of the president's key budget advisors during one of those long, tedious meetings to decide where the cuts should be made. Then again, perhaps our far-flung correspondent has a fly on the wall at the White House that we don't know about. We'll let you decide....

The president's budget director and chief of staff were seated at a round table in an office down the hall from the Oval Office. In front of them piles of papers with endless columns of printed figures and handmade red ink markings were spread out in a haphazard fashion. The two aides were tired - they'd been pouring over this mess, er, the president's new budget proposals, for nearly eighteen hours straight, and it was the wee, wee hours of the morning. If the room had windows, we'd have seen that the sun was just beginning to crack over the Potomac River. These financial wizards appeared flustered, to be at their wits' end.

The budget director unconsciously scratched the stuble on his chin with the clicker on the tip of his red pen, and wearily announced, "Look, we've been through this budget six hundred times. I can't think of another place where we can make cuts substantial enough to get it down to the point where Mr. President will be happy. I mean, we've cut everything from toilet paper in the GSA to lightbulbs in the Pentagon. What's left?"

The chief of staff shrugged, sighed heavily, heaving his chest. "Got me. All I know is Mr. President is under a lot of pressure from Congress to make more cuts. The problem is, everytime he proposes cuts, the Congressmen whose pet projects are the areas in which he wants to make the cuts come forward and start screaming bloody murder. We're damned if we do and damned if we don't. All I know is Mr. President isn't going to let us out of this room until we've come up with a solution."

"Well," perked up the budget director, "there're always the old standbys, education and the disabled. We can go over those two areas one more time and come up with a few more cuts. Heck, the working man doesn't care what happens to people in those areas, and Mr. President's got nothing to lose. He's not even running again in four years."

That idea seemed palpable to the chief of staff. "I guess we don't have much choice."

They sifted through the mass of papers until they located the ones marked eduation and the handicapped.

"I've got just the areas we can cut in!" shouted the budget director, going over the proposed federal education budget with renewed enthusiasm. "We can cut out most of the student loans! We'll set a ceiling. Say, fifteen thousand a year for a family of four. If they earn more than that, pow!, we take their student loans away from them! We could save nearly a billion right there!"

"Hey, I think that's super!" the chief of staff agreed, peering over the budget director'shoulder as he busily etched red line after red line through more of those endless columns of printed figures. "But we're going to have to come up with a darn good public relations scheme to convince the public that this is for the best," he added cautiously.

The budget director paused from his etching. "Mmmm, you're right." He thought deeply for a moment, then piped up, "I've got it! We'll say something like 'It's about time you students who come from poor families realize that there's no such thing as a free lunch. The working man, the hard working taxpayer of this nation, is tired of footing your bills! You're gonna have to think about public institutions now instead of private ones. Besides, private institutions are a rip-off! Everybody knows that.'"

"Yeah, and we can say 'This is an era of new austerity. You students will just have to learn to give up summer vacations on Martha's Vineyard, sail boats and beer parties. If you want that lifestyle, play football and win a scholarship like Doug Flutie!'"

The budget director's countenance suddenly turned perplexed. "There's something wrong with that. I mean, poor kids don't spend summer vacations drinking beer in sailboats off of Martha's Vineyard. Our kids do."

"Oh," the chief of staff responded disconcertingly. "Well, we'll leave that problem to the Official White House Spokesperson and the PR staff to solve. Our job is to save the taxpayers money for more important things, like B-1 bombers."

"Hey!" the budget director snapped. "That's it! We can tell the public that the money saved by cutting student loans and money for the handicapped will go to strengthening our national security. Everybody is into showing off our strength militarily these days. We need fifty billion dollars to build twenty-five new B-1s Mr. President wants built, and that's that!"

The chief of staff grinned happily from ear to ear. "Gosh, you always amaze me. Now how about moving on to those disabled, huh?"

The budget director sighed. "It's not going to be as easy there. Liberals like Kennedy are going to raise a holy stink if we cut too much from the handicapped."

"So what if he gets mad. It can only help the Republican party. After all, we won't have Mr. President running again in four years. We need to preserve the Grand Old Party any way we can. That would be just another way for Kennedy to prime himself for the presidency in '88, while young Joe Kennedy primes himself to make a run for his uncle's seat. But who cares? That won't heat up for another four years. Meanwhile, we can do a lot of cutting in that area."

"I don't know...."

"You just go right ahead and cut."

"All right, I'll do the red lining, you think of what we're going to tell the American people."

"I've got just the pitch. Listen to this...."

Open House at Health Center

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington (RHCW) has grown rapidly since it opened its doors six years ago.

The RHCW will host a community open house on Tuesday, March 19 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The administrative director, Nicholas A. Balog; the medical director, George M. Hazel, M.D.; and the management team will be on hand to offer tours of the ambulatory health care center, highlight the wide range of services offered, and answer questions. Refreshments will be served.

The health center has recorded an impressive growth rate since it opened in 1978. The number of patients treated at the Salem Street facility has increased continually, with a current average of 280 individuals seen daily. More than 80,000 individuals have been served since the center opened.

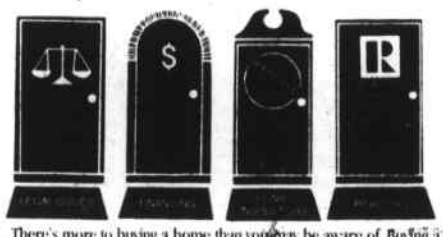

An outpatient ambulatory care center created by concerned Wilmington residents in conjunction with Choate Hospital in Woburn, the RHCW has brought much-needed comprehensive and convenient health care to a formerly medically underserved area. It remains strong in its commitment to offer quality patient treatment as well as health promotion and disease prevention.

RHCW physicians and allied health professionals represent a broad array of medical/surgical specialties and subspecialties including internal medicine, obstetrics/gynecology, pediatrics, gastroenterology, oncology/hemotology, orthopedics, dermatology, rheumatology, otolaryngology (ear, nose and throat), endocrinology, mental health, plastic surgery, hand surgery, urology, ophthalmology and podiatry.

The health center's goal is to provide continuity of care, and to make it possible for patients to receive comprehensive medical treatment in an unfragmented way since all services are available under one roof.

Call the center at 657-3910, ext. 567, by March 12 to register for the open house.

Cat leukemia

may be a definite leukemia-prone personality in cats: primarily those which are subject to a high degree of stress.

Cats have been around a long time on this planet, about 30 million years, in fact, which is much longer than man, according to zoologist Ida M. Mellen. But cat leukemia was first identified only about 15 years ago, Wiedwald said, when it was learned for certain that leukemia in cats was caused by a virus. Since then, certain tests have been developed, among them a serum test at Medford's Tufts University, for the detection, but not the prevention or cure of cat leukemia.

And now, according to Dr. Wiedwald, scientists at the Ohio State Veterinary School have developed a vaccine (due out "any day," from Norden Labs), whose "preliminary, intermediate and long-range results are apparently very good."

The feline leukemia virus, according to the National Veterinary Laboratory (NLV), belongs to a group of viruses which cause cancer in a number of species, and the following diseases are known to be caused by FeLV:

1. Lymphosarcoma (leukemia), a fatal cancerous disease of the white blood cells. It has no particular breed or sex bias, but is more common in young cats.

The NLV reinforces Dr. Wiedwald's claim that leukemia is rare — and the danger to suburban cats if miniscule. Though lymphosarcoma is the most common form of cancer in the cat, it occurs annually in about 42 cats per 100,000 in the at-risk cat population, according to the NLV.

Unfortunately, the signs are not specific or even consistent from cat to cat. But some signs are common: pale gums indicating anemia, enlarged lymph nodes, listlessness, lack of appetitie, difficulty in breathing, and poor coat condition.

2. Non-responsive anemia, characterized by pale gums, weakness and weight loss.

3. Panleukopenia-like Syndrome. This often occurs after the infected healthy cat has been subjected to stresses such as hospitalization, cat fights and abscesses. Signs include bloody diarrhea and loss of weight and mimic classical "distemper."

4. Fading Kitten Syndrome, which occurs in newborn kittens from FeLV-infected queens, or in kittens infected shortly after birth. The virus infects the thymus gland controlling the immune defense system. The kittens progress poorly and die from various infections (usually bacteria) within one to two weeks from birth.

Despite occasional bad press (Edgar Allen Poe's "The Black Cat," comes to mind, along with the notion of cats serving as "familiars" or evil assistants to witches) and a certain observable prejudice by some people towards cats, the housecat is a useful breed indeed:

"Human civilization appears hardly ever to have existed without the presence of the cat," according to zoologist Mellen. "Oriental women discovered very early that without the cat the grain that was stored for winter use would be consumed by rodents.

"The ancients also engaged cats to help them catch birds used for food and birds which destroyed the fruit and grain...For centuries in China and Japan they have protected the silkworm cocoons from rats, which would eat the pupae."

Moreover, "cats are the greatest healers in the world," Dr. Gary Wiedwald adds, which statement actually bears two applications. Not only do they recuperate well, according to the Winchester veterinarian — they also can provide physiological benefits to humans, according to recent research.

Cats have been introduced in fact, into some nursing homes, and are reported to deliver not only warmth and comfort to the people who stroke them, but can measurably reduce the blood pressure of the person petting the cat. If the cat's purr is any measure of relaxation (one mentioned was named "Evinrude" for the strength of his purr), the animal's blood pressure is also being reduced, researchers claim.

Cats even grow gray with age, like humans, and, besides purring, Mellen writes, "the voice of the cat, which covers two full octaves, presents a variety of expressions, its inflections conveying the meaning. The language...covers a wide range of emotions. Cats spit, mew, hiss, growl, screech and caterwaul."

Despite evidence that the danger of feline leukemia is not enormous, particularly to suburban cats, "Without a doubt, feline leukemia is one of the hardest-hitting diseases to afflict cats today," according to Richard H. Pitcairn, D.V.M., Ph.D, writing in the magazine "Prevention."

Pitcairn described cat leukemia in early 1984 as a "near-epidemic" disease, but agreed with Gary Wiedwald that diet is an important factor in the maintaining of a healthy, disease-free cat:

"Of the 599 diagnosed leukemic cats studied (through a 2,000-plus reader-response questionnaire to the magazine) only 18 percent ate any fresh, home-prepared food, as compared to 31 percent of 533 healthy control cats at least five years old."

Pitcairn's findings also supported Dr. Wiedwald's claims, regarding both the stress factor and the leukemia-prone cat personality:

"A further analysis comparing recent exposures to insecticides, surgeries, vaccinations, accidents and animal fights for sick and healthy cats in the same household" tends to support the idea that the illness appeared shortly after an adverse reaction to routine vaccinations, flea dips, or use of insecticides or other poisons around the home. Typically, such cats encountered additional emotional stresses at the same time, such as a cat fight, a move, or the owner's absence, Pitcairn reported.

But, "regardless of the complexities involved in the development of this or any disease, the good news is that many cats can recover completely from leukemia, given optimal support," (Prevention, Feb. 1984).

Aside from the scientific aspect of the disease, there is an emotional side as well, which Winchester's Gary Wiedwald said he makes a special point to stress to pet-owners at his clinics in Reading and Melrose: "I say before testing a member of a multi-cat household: 'What will you do if one cat shows positive signs of the virus, and the others negative?' "

Wiedwald said he feels the owner should be prepared to have to make possibly painful decisions before the test is given, but euthanasia is not always the guaranteed result.

Often, Wiedwald said, if a cat is ill and he suggests testing for feline leukemia, there is an automatic click in the owner's mind: 'My cat has leukemia,' which may not be the case.

"There are so many possibilities to feline leukemia: the cat might get it, and shed it. He might eliminate it entirely. He might get it and keep it. But just because the cat has the virus does not mean he will necessarily get leukemia or die from it."

As for nutrition, as a factor in either the prevention or the cure of the virus, one respondent to the Prevention questionnaire indicated chicken livers apparently restored her cat to health, for an additional two years of life. Should a cat-owner then allow the cat's "natural instinct" to dictate what it should eat?

"The owner may not be a nutritionist," Wiedwald said, "Letting the cat decide what's best to eat would be like letting my six-year-old decide what's best to eat."

But there is hope, according to both Dr. Wiedwald and Dr. Pitcairn. The new vaccine, as a preventive innoculation, will soon be available — and sound nutrition, pet care and hygiene may prevent the spread of the disease and enhance the cat's ability to shed it. For further information on cat leukemia, consult any veterinarian.

Gary Wiedwald, who lives in Winchester with his wife, Victoria and their three children, Alexis, 14, Nathan, 12, and Catherine, six, grew up in Ohio. He did his undergraduate work there, at Miami University, and is a graduate (D.V.M.) of the Ohio State Veterinary School. He said he and his wife came to Boston's suburbs in 1969.

Any pets? Of course.

The Wiedwalds have a dog, Perry, and two cats, Chessie and Itsy, none of whom, along with six-year-old Catherine, gets to decide what he or she will eat.

There will be something for everyone. If you are interested in special and unique gifts for Easter, Mother's Day or any occasion, you will find a variety of wonderfully made craft items to choose from. If you are a bargain hunter or collector, there will be flea market tables with an array of interesting items for sale. Of course, browsers and pokers are welcome too. You are invited to take a healthy hardy stroll to the First Congregational Church. Come look over the tables at the Craft Show and Flea Market, shop and enjoy brunch between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. or eat lunch between 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m.

There will be a baked goods and home-made candy table with a big supply of breads, cookies, pies, squares and candy for sale. The profits from this table will be donated to an organization, such as Oxfam or Project Bread, that feeds hungry people. It is hoped that the public will support the church's efforts to raise funds to fed the hungry people of this world.

ANTHONY MANCONI

"Make the World Go Away" — and get off of my shoulders, was the title of a popular song a few years ago. It is also the "theme song" and general attitude of many people today. Well, the world won't go away and you can't hide from it either behind those obnoxious six foot high stockade fences. You have to come out of your shells sometime and walk or drive out of your gate into the "real" world, If there's something or condition that you don't like, tell you council or town meeting members about it — most of them geniunely want to help.

My father told me this story many years ago. A man was climbing a steep hill with a great deal of difficulty. He was carrying his father on his shoulders taking him "over the hill to the poor house." When the crest of the hill was reached the father asked his son to put him down a while because that's where he rested years ago when he was bringing his own father to the poor house. The shock of those words made the son turn and bring his father home again to live his remaining years as part of the family. The moral to this true story is clear — "warehouse," your parents today and the chances are that you will be "warehoused" yourselves someday.

A neighbor of mine was living the life of Riley — two jobs, on the bowling team Tuesday and Thursday nights, golf with the boys on Saturday and Sunday mornings. He was busy as a "bee." He came home one day and found his "honey" gone.

Woodchips has given me the opportunity to meet many truly wonderful people in the Middlesex East area. I received a beautiful letter from Dora M. Hirtle of Wilmington. In it she writes that she has cut out every one of my columns and asks if I ever considered compiling them in a book. I have thought about it Dora, but so far one other person, Mr. Louis O'Malley of Winchester has asked the same question. I thank both of you for the compliment.

I met Eddie Schwartz while shopping in Reading. He is a retired certified welder which means only the "Arch Angel Gabriel is better and also Joan of Arc who was perhaps the first Woman Welder." I always stop to say "Hello" to Holly a Labrador Retriever owned by Tom and Carrie Mooney of Forest St., Winchester. This dog is amazingly intelligent. She watches television and applauds with her barking in the right places in the story. "This really surprises me," I told Carrie. "I can't explain it either," she said, "because Holly 'hated' the book."

Father John Crispo of St. Margaret's Church in Burlington was making out a Baptismal Certificate, paused, (couldn't find a calendar) turned and asked, "this is the nineteenth isn't it Mary?" "What" she screamed, "the 19th indeed, this is only the 11th!!!"

I read with great interest, Arlene Suprenant's article in the Wilmington Town Crier, "Rainbow Girls — fun, fellowship and opportunities." This worldwide organization's membership is open to girls 12 to 20 years of age. The young ladies gain poise, confidence and the ability to speak in front of others. The friendship of the members last a lifetime. Many of my friends boast that they married a Rainbow girl. Wayne Higden of Burlington was proud to tell me that his lovely wife Diane, was one. My wife Kathy read the article and said she qualified to be one herself. If I gained anymore weight around my waist she would be the Rainbow girl, and I would look like the "pot" at the end of the rainbow.

Happy Birthday Nicole Higden. In two more years you will be eligible to join the thousands of beautiful young ladies as a member. The only time I get to open my mouth at home is when I "yawn." You know folks, there isn't a fireplace in the world that can warm a person with a "cold heart." Dr. John Nowak is an eminent Bugoligist who claims that eating bananas is good for the eyesight. He proves his theory saying, "have you ever seen a monkey wearing glasses?" Drinking will never wash away your troubles — it will only "irrigate" them.

I met Majorie Swain who is secretary to the library director at Salem State College. I asked where I could find the book, "Men, the Masters of Women." "It's two aisles over in the Fiction Dept." Congratulations Christine Bracciotti for being named Student of the Month of February by the Stoneham Woman's Club. Christine is secretary of the National Honor Society at Stoneham High Andrea Solomita was the recipient of the Hugh O'Brien Scholarship, awarded to Andrea by Mrs. George Cray president of the Stoneham Woman's Club. Principal of Stoneham High, Thomas Ryan was at the presentation ceremonies.

My Aunt Maria of Wilmington went to Woburn Supply and asked for a one half inch pipe plug. The genial clerk asked "do you want a male plug, a female plug or one of each?" "Look mister," my aunt exclaimed," I just want a plug to stop a leak — I don't intend to raise them!!!"

Everyone at the Woburn Elks knows that I'm a soft touch. I buy tickets and contribute to any cause or charity. But, I refused to buy a raffle ticket for a widow and her six children — what would I do if I won them?"

THE BI-MONTHLY meeting of the Wakefield Retired Men's Club was held on Wednesday at the Congregational Church in Wakefield. Guest speaker was Dr. Samuel Kirkwood, president of American University of Beirut, Lebanon and former health minister here in the United States. The club's membership represents over 600 retirees from Greater Boston communities including Reading, Wakefield, Woburn, Winchester and Burlington, and several from out of state. 318 attended Wednesday's meeting.

Retired Men observe Scouting's 75th

The February 13th meeting of Retired Men's Club of Wakefield, celebrated the Diamond Jubilee of Boy Scouts of USA. A major surprise was in store for 90 years young, Chester Card, a charter-member of one of the first troops in the United States; Troop One sponsored by First Congregational Church, Everett, Massachusetts.

Veteran Scouter Leslie York of Reading had a framed letter of congratulations from Congressman Edward J. Markey, who informed York that the honorary president of boy scouts, President Reagan would be sending greetings also. Les York presented a scout belt to the honoree with a comment that, "in some sports a belt denotes a champion."

As one of Scout Card's claims to fame, that he was Troop Bugler, a Merit Badge for bugling was presented by Minuteman Council executive, Robert H. Hempe. A standing ovation greeted Mr. Card at the close of the ceremony.

Leslie York, of the new Powder-horn . District Committee, is a volunteer assistant to program chairman, vice president Richards and was responsible for arranging this special event. Al Webber was honored to introduce the speaker Bob Hempe. Minuteman Council serves Scouts and Scouters in 19 cities and towns of Middlesex County, plus a unit at L.C. Hanscom AFB.

If there were a merit badge for stand-up comedy, Hempe would have earned it by his warm-up performance. He then went on to capture the audience's attention when he said, "I want to do two things today and I'll need your help. I want to find that 12-year old that is still inside each one of you. I also hope I'll say something that will make you glad you were a scout, or wish you had been.

"The seond thing I hope to establish with you is that a child is a most important being, and has been throughout history, and maybe is the reason this program works so well."

In a dramatic vein he took his audience back to the 12-year old Jesus among the elders and teachers in the Temple, explaining the power of the word of God; of how the shepherd boy David slew the mighty Goliath; the young lad with loaves and fishes brought by Andrew to the Master on the Galilean hillside; the maid of Orleans, Joan of Arc who rallied the army of France to victory; of the dying drummer boy at Gettysburg, symbol of a nation torn by strife; or modern day events such as that picture of little Jon Jon saluting the casket of a fallen father or that day in '84 when Olympic Gold Medalist, Mary Lou Retton caused the wellsprings of patriotism to surge throughout the land.

Of course, if you're in scouting, it's a pleasure to relate the legendary anecdote about Chicago newspaperman William D. Boyce in England on business, hopelessly lost in a London Fog, who was taken to his destination by a lad who when offered a tip said, "'I can't accept it sir, this was a 'good turn' and I am a Scout."

So you see gentlemen, this thing called youth which has served our world from the beginning, is the spirit scouting has captured and served from its beginning to the present day.

Having set a solid foundation for the high moral plain and aspirations of the movement, Hempe told of many changes during his half century in the organization. Yet one thing has never changed, the Scout Oath (or Promise). The handshake has gone from left to right; a former male bastion has girls and women on its rosters, i.e. co-ed Explorer Posts and Cub Scout Den Mothers.

In the early days you opened your handbook to read 'Do a Good Turn Daily,' help an old lady across a street, give a thirsty horse water, or in the merit badge for safety, how to stop a runaway horse. Today we'd like to know how to stop a runaway car or plane or rocket!

A half century ago we signaled with semaphore and Morse code flags, whereas today our scouts are becoming familiar with short-wave and two-way radio. There are merit badges for competency with computers; rocketry and the study of aeronautics.

Mr. Hempe remembers sitting around the campfire when you thought of the lifesaving merit badge as saving a drowning

In conclusion, after the ball was over, Gonzalo said that, "we had a good time, I'm ahead $10,000, and it was all fun."

The state's newest millionaire turned out to be Marie Constantine, 60, of Gardner who, while posing with and leaning against the display of one million dollars in cash, said that she felt, "tired."

Constantine, who has three children and seven grandchildren, said that they would be taking a trip to Hawaii.

Her husband of 35 years, Raymond, said that he had a "gut feeling" months ago that they were going to win the grand prize.

Also present at the ball was Phil Masotta, owner of Masotta's Variety store at 305 Main St. in Woburn.

Gonzalo had purchased the losing tickets that entitled him to be entered in the Millionaire's Ball at Masotta's store.

Masotta has also sold three winning Megabucks tickets for a combined total of $5.2 million in winnings, with one customer winning on two tickets.

Masotta said that he was responsible for recommending recent changes to the lottery commission, such as including five games on one lottery slip, which has helped to reduce the amount of time it takes to process tickets and cut back on the long waiting lines to purchase them.

Masotta also claimed responsibility for suggesting that there be a Wednesday night drawing in addition to the Saturday Megabucks drawing.

"With one drawing every Saturday and Wednesday," Masotta said, "it makes for more winners out in the field.

"I really can't see waiting seven or eight weeks for someone to hit the number," he said, "this way it gets more people to play."

Masotta also claims that he knew who was going to win the million dollar jackpot early in the evening.

"I had a feeling after seeing her and talking to her that Mrs. Constantine was going to win it," he said.

"So I wasn't really surprised when her number came up," he said, "I had told my daughter earlier in the evening that she was the one.

"I think it's great that someone like her, with so many grandchildren and family should win," Masotta said, "and you know that the money is going to stay right here in Massachusetts. It's good for the economy."

Masotta said that he hoped the plans for increasing the numbers on the game card from 36 to 42 wouldn't go through.

"I think that with all the extra numbers it would just take too long before there was a winner," Masotta said.

Home Buyer's Clinic March 7

The Bjorkman & Lann Div. of Foster & Foster Realtors will hold a Home Buyers' Clinic on Thursday, March 7, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at their Reading office on 258 Main St.

The seminar is offered free to the public and is designed to equip the home buyer with informational tools for making a wise decision when purchasing a home.

G. Dudley Welch, esq. of Wakefield, will discuss legal commitments and responsibilities on the part of both buyer and seller. Fred Ciampa of Love, Minsk and Ciampa will answer questions pertainng to equity, taxes and renting versus buying from an accountant's point of view.

Fundamental procedures in acquiring a mortgage instrument and the various types of financing available will be discussed by Marianne Ryan, manager of the Northshore Loan Center of Bank of New England. Ralph Tisei of the American Home Inspection Service will discuss the procedures in determining the condition of an anticipated purchase.

The seminar will be hosted by Barbara J. Scott, regional manager of Foster & Foster, who will also acquaint prospective home buyers with the various services and assistance offered by realtors.

buddy, treating for snakebite or heatstroke. Today a scout might display his ARC life-saving diploma, or they might be receiving instruction from EMT's and/or Paramedics.

Yes, gentlemen, scouting has changed! It's the same Eagle Badge, earned now as it was then 'in the spirit of the times.' But the oath, motto and slogan have not altered a single word! The longer we stayed, the more we learned, so that this thing we call duty to God, to country, to others and to self became ingrained in our beings as we matured to moral and upright citizens, as we gained the respect of family, friend and neighbor.

If Hempe were not a professional scouter, he well may have been a Lutheran Priest, for with his audience on the edge of their seats and a lump in their throats, he reminded his listeners that; be it 1910 or 1985 and you're teaching kids, you got to find a way to shut off the drug pusher, to shut off the child molester, to do what the Scout Oath says about duties. It's never been more important than today to keep physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

After extending his thanks for having shared the clubs observance of BSA's Diamond Jubilee, he was given a standing ovation for having touched once more, that 12-year old boy that is, or was, in each one of you, that is or ever was a Boy Scout of America.

The meeting was opened in the usual way by President Merrifield. He read thank yous for memorials to the memory of brothers: Fred Coggin, Archie Hayward, and Alfred Latour. First time visitors were: John H. Austin and Wilmot W. Jones, Reading; Charles Parrish, Melrose and William W. Turgiss, Woburn. Added to membership were: Joseph F. Furio, Reading and Chester Wesolowski, Stoneham.

Vice president Frank Day (birthdays), John Griffin (chairman sick and visitation), Tom Coughlan and George Flewelling (door prize) and the several sub-committee chairmen performed routinely, after which President Les Merrifield turned the proceedings over to vice-president Richards and assistant Les York who introduced a most interesting and memorable program for the total enjoyment of the 237 present.

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

It is common knowledge that diamonds are very valuable items, but now some stars of the diamond are almost as precious in their baseball card form.

On Sunday, March 10, from 10:00 AM to 3 PM, all will have the opportunity to invest in some of these rare baseball cards or to just tour baseball's memory lane by attending "Spring Preview 1985: Baseball Card and Memorabilia Show". This event will be held at the Sons of Italy Hall, 19 Prentiss Road, (off Mass. Ave.), Arlington. The show's numerous dealers will feature baseball artifacts and cards from the Doubleday era to the present day era. This spring training special is sponsored by Temple Shalom Emeth Brotherhood of Burlington. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. All guests will be eligible for hourly door prize drawings. What better way to welcome in another season of the Nation's Pastime!

"Life of Christ"

In the final concert of a three concert series at the First Congregational Church, Stoneham, baritone Ernest Triplett will sing "The Life of Christ", as arranged by the late Roland Hayes, and accompanied by Joan Reddy at the piano. In addition, Mr. Triplett will sing Antonio Vivaldi's "Stabat Mater" with Joan Reddy conducting the Copley String Quartet.

The setting by Roland Hayes of a cycle of Afro-American religious songs (called spirituals) in the form of a "Life of Christ" constitutes one of the most beautiful works of American music. It can be compared in emotional intensity, artistic depth, and humanity to the great 17th and 18th century settings of the Passion narrative.

Vivaldi's "Stabat Mater" with a text of mediaeval meditation has attracted musicians from all ages for its sorrow-laden expression, moving towards a more affirmative conclusion.

This final concert of baritone Ernest Triplett will take place at the First Congregational Church in Stoneham on Sunday, March 24th at 3 PM. Adults, $6, Students and Elders $4. For additional information, call 964-5927.

Pick the natural cheese

Cheesemasters rely on their senses, their years of experience and dozens of checks to make quality natural cheese. For a cheesemaster, the specific natural cheese variety will dictate the proper texture and flavor characteristics. Quality control begins with the milk and continues in each step of the cheesemaking process, ensuring consistent, high-quality results.

A Cheesemaster's HANDBOOK

How can the consumer be assured of top quality, natural cheese? And what steps should be taken after purchase to retain that quality?

In a new pamplet entitled "A Cheesemaster's Handbook", the experts share their knowledge on how to choose, store and taste natural cheese.

For your free copy, send your name and address to: A Cheesemaster's Handbook, P.O. Box 827, Dept. FE, South Holland, Illinois 60473.

From baseball cards to spirituals, from spirited discussions to natural cheese, COMING ATTRACTIONS each week comes up with something a little out of the ordinary, but just perfect to try. If you know of other events of interest to all that fit under these categories or any other categories, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about them. We keep searching for the new and different, but we like all we discover.

AARP meets March 8

The next meeting of the American Association of Retired Persons will be held Friday, March 8 at the Melrose Highlands Congregational Church on Franklin Street. The program will feature "Line Dancing" under the direction of Will Crocker. This will be an open meeting and guests are welcome. This will also be a "Pie Social" and assorted pies and beverage will be served for $1.25 per person. Many have volunteered to help out, others can still contribute at the meeting. It should be a lively party. Guests wishing to become new members will be welcome.

All monthly meetings of the Chapter are held at the Melrose Highlands Congregational Church on Franklin street on the second Friday of each month, September through June, at 1:30 p.m. unless otherwise announced. Members come from Lynnfield, Melrose, Reading, Stoneham and Wakefield.

The Friday Feb. 8 meeting was opened at 1:30 p.m. by President Signe Bickell. The invocation was given by the Reverend Donald Davis of the First Church of the Nazarene in Melrose. The meeting started with the Pledge of Allegiance and singing of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." There were 95 present at this meeting.

Carolyn Norton, secretary, read her report. The treasurer's report was presented by Katherine Kennedy.

The featured speaker for the February meeting was Henry Y. Porter of Reading who presented a slide talk on "Abraham Lincoln, the Greatest of Them All." Mr. Porter was well qualified to give this lecture because of all his research, not only on Lincoln, but on other celebrities including George Washington. He has many black and white autographed photos of these celebrities to back up his slide showing.

Henry Porter mentioned and illustrated by his slides Lincoln's family members, his early life as a lawyer in Springfield, Illinois and the Douglas debate on slavery, his presidency, his cabinet, the Civil War, its generals and battles, the Washington Monument which took some time to complete in the late 1800's, the Gettysburg address, Mary Todd Lincoln, his wife, his friends, Julia Ward Howe, Clara Barton, Harriet Beecher Stowe, the assassination and present day memorials to Lincoln. Many other facts on Lincoln's life and history which would really fill a book.

Why was Lincoln the greatest of them all? (1) He preserved the Union and (2) He freed the slaves. He was the greatest of them all!

CONSUMER REPORTS

Computing at home

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Computer systems priced at less than $1,000 may be suitable for many home uses. But for more advanced computing, you'll have to pay more.

A computer system based on the Apple IIc that's capable of many business uses as well as most home uses was assembled by Consumer Reports' electronics engineers. While it lists for around $2,000, components are typically discounted.

The Apple system combines the IIc computer with its monitor, stand and printer. The computer comes with a built-in disk drive and 128K of user memory.

The computer's main unit, containing the electronics, keyboard and built-in disk drive, is about the size of a looseleaf notebook and weighs about 7 1/2 pounds. It's attached to a 3-pound power supply unit.

On the back of the sealed main unit are ports to plug in a monitor, second disk drive, serial printer, modem, and a controller port that can accommodate joy sticks for games or a "mouse" pointing device used mainly with graphics programs.

The Apple IIc's standard, full-size keyboard has 63 keys. All of the keys repeat when held down. The engineers liked its keyboard feel. Two "Apple" keys act like function keys. However, the keyboard has no other programmable function keys and no numeric key pad.

You can store roughly 100 pages of double-spaced text in the IIc's built-in disk storage system's 144K of memory. That can limit you somewhat for business uses.

When the disk is full you either have to start another data disk or erase some of the documents you no longer need to make room for new documents.

Adding a second disk drive (available for $329) makes the IIc more suitable for business uses. With two drives you don't have to switch disks during such routine operations as saving data or formatting a disk.

With the 9-inch monochrome monitor, the Apple IIc computer can display 80 characters across the screen and 24 lines of text. That wide, deep display is desirable for any but the most casual work with word-processor or spreadsheet applications programs. Although text quality in the 80-column mode was good, the engineers said that the monitor's picture appeared somewhat shrunken horizontally.

The engineers say that if you're interested in a computer largely to help your kids with their school work, the Apple-based system would be a good choice. The Apple family of computers and programs are used in many schools.

The Apple IIc comes with three manuals and five tutorial disks which the engineers found very easy to use. With its matching monitor and stand, the system also makes an invitingly compact computer package that is fairly easy to work into a small office at home.
